Shannon McClintock-Miller

Shannon McClintock-Miller is the author of the award winning blog The Library Voice, and enjoys writing for various blogs, journals and other forums. In 2016, she was awarded the “Make it Happen Award” by The International Society for Technology in Education (ISTE). She served as the K-12 district teacher librarian at Van Meter Community School District in Iowa. Shannon is an international speaker and consultant who speaks about education, librarianship, technology, social media, and making a difference in education.

Middle school and high school students love being engaged and connected to their learning, passions, and technology. We have the opportunity to give them the tools they need to collaborate, connect, and create with others not just in their classroom and school, but around the world. In this session, participants will learn how to use a variety of digital tools to do just that . . . Connect, Create and Collaborate! Shannon McClintock Miller will show a number of amazing digital tools, give lots of real-life examples that worked for her in the classroom and have you participate in hands-on activities that you will be able to use in your classroom. You will walk away with a rich tool box filled with things you can put into practice with your students.
